MR. HASKELL AND THE MOR MONS.

We remember to have heard in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, the day after President Garfield was shot, the "chief priests and rulers" of that infamous creed, proclaim that it was the judgment of God upon one saints of God. We see that the same blasphemous and traitorous ery is office with more friends than he had raised over the new made grave of when he entered it Mr. Haskell. The Mormon press, headed by the News, of Salt Lake City, with a depth of malice almost incredible, claims the diect interposition oquently thus:

The Salt Lake Tribune speaks of it cloquently thus:

It is simply infamous and is born of the treason and malice which hedges the Mormon church around like a winding sheet. They must not flatter themselves that Mr. Haskell has gone to oblivion. He was not one of the kind that such a fate awaits. The loving hearts of teas of thousands of loyal men and women of a great frestate are in tears for him; his grave is holy ground, and in the years to come, as the history of that State shall be gritten, on a golden page of the record of his manly life will be pointed out to children as the story of one whose life was not stained by one vice, and who when sent from the frontier to join the assembled wisdom of the Nation at the Capital, in a single seesson established himself as one of the foremost of the men who there strive for intellectual mastery. To charge that God smote this man because he raised his voice against the iniquity which here, in the name of religion, brands women with degradation, innocent children with shame, and makes brutes and natural law breakers of men, is draining the very lees of the cup of bigotry and meanness.

THE WEATHER OF 1883.

We are in receipt of Prof. Snow' meteorological summary for the year just ended, from which we quote a few extracts that will give your friends in the east a better idea of Kansas weather than anything less than actual experience would furnish.

The chief characteristics of the weather of 1883 were the low mean temperature of all its months except Grafting, by Mr. Smeltzer; Horticul-April, November and/December; the ture and Public Schools, by W.
